What is a Goldie’s History Kit?

This Goldie’s History Kit is designed by the State Historical Society of Iowa for elementary-level educators to instruct about government, democracy and laws. It includes the corresponding Read Iowa History lessons and educational components that have been tested and vetted as part of the State Historical Society of Iowa’s Goldie’s Kids Club that focus on literacy, visual literacy and Iowa history. There are detailed instruction to assist educators to incorporate these activities in a classroom. This kit also was developed to reflect the Iowa Core Social Studies and Literacy Standards. Goldie’s Kids Club is a free program developed by the State Historical Society of Iowa to introduce children aged 12 and under to Iowa history – starting with Goldie, the eastern goldfinch, which is the state bird.

What’s Included

Read Iowa History
- Structured lesson plans integrating primary sources and literacy skills

Read Aloud
- 4 books to read aloud to students
- Text-dependent questions

History Mystery
- Students investigate objects from the State Historical Museum of Iowa collection

Think Like... Cards
- Cards featuring prominent Iowans in history to integrate with lesson plans

Read Iowa History
Read Iowa History is a curriculum project that provides elementary-level educators with primary source lessons that are directly tied to key literacy skills and the State Historical Society of Iowa’s Primary Source Sets. These lessons provide structured lesson plans that integrate social studies and literacy with accompanying worksheets and hands-on activities to promote the use of primary sources at an elementary level.

Read Aloud
This Goldie’s History Kit provides four books related to government, democracy and laws. This read aloud activity combines literacy and Iowa history, and offers text-dependent questions to facilitate discussion around the book.

History Mystery
History Mystery is designed to challenge students to use their skills of deduction, observation and critical thinking to identify the multiple artifacts included in this activity. All objects are from the State Historical Museum of Iowa’s collection, providing students with a unique opportunity to interact with museum artifacts from their own classrooms. Individual students or small groups will work as “history detectives” to figure out the nature of the object, its use and its relationship to the theme through the use of photographs and videos.

Think Like... Cards
The “Think Like...” activity includes a set of cards to encourage students to think about history through multiple perspectives. The cards include questions for students to use to guide their process of understanding of government, democracy and laws from different points of view. Every kit includes five universal cards (geographer, economist, journalist, economist and political scientist) and two additional ones related directly to the topic. Each card provides background information about a notable Iowan to provide a direct Iowa history connection.
Instructions

How To Use The Kit

This kit is designed to provide structured lessons and supplemental activities to educators with the freedom to decide what options are best for their classrooms and best fit into their curriculum. Educators are encouraged to first explore the manual and its four main elements (Read Iowa History, Read Aloud, History Mystery and Think Like... cards) to design a lesson for students that will fit their needs. Educators are welcome to alter any lesson plans, worksheets and assessments in the kit. Each of the four main sections include detailed instructions and suggested formats on how to use each section individually or interchangeably. Below are some suggested recommendations and tips to navigate the manual and activities.

Begin with Read Iowa History

The Read Iowa History lesson plans are structured and provide a more defined outline for integrating primary sources in the classroom. You can use the primary source lesson plans in the order provided, or however you see fit. Read Iowa History – as all four components – has background information, a materials list, easily reproducible worksheets and instructions to prepare your lesson.

Goldie's History Kit Connection: There are Goldie icons in Read Iowa History to highlight connections that you could integrate with an activity from Read Aloud, History Mystery or the Think Like... cards activity.

Read Aloud, History Mystery & Think Like... Cards

These three components can be used as a separate lesson or you can integrate an element of an activity to Read Iowa History to provide more hands-on experience within the lesson. At the beginning of each of these sections in the manual, there are detailed introductions to highlight what is needed for that section (i.e. books are used for Read Aloud, photos and videos with History Mystery) and suggested formats to guide the sections. For Read Aloud, this includes additional information about the book and historical context. For History Mystery, this includes different formats to assist in the activity depending on time constraints and detailed information about each object, as well as a worksheet and questions to help students identify each object and its historical significance. Think Like... cards also provide instructions, and of the three, can be a much more flexible activity that can be integrated into a more structured lesson plan.

Additional Digital Access

Some elements of the kit will need to be digitally accessed. There is a USB flash drive in the kit box. It includes a digital version of this manual, worksheets, photographs and video for History Mystery and some optional supplemental materials. This content also is available on a Google Drive folder, where materials can be downloaded.

Introduction to Read Iowa History

About Read Iowa History

Through the Library of Congress Teaching with Primary Sources grant, the State Historical Society of Iowa developed Read Iowa History — free, downloadable K-5 lesson plans to build and develop reading and critical thinking skills with primary sources in the classroom.

Primary sources (from the digital Primary Source Sets collection) are used to help students learn from multiple perspectives, develop primary source-based claims and evidence, and to interpret documents and images of the past. These lessons were developed with the Iowa Core Social Studies and Literacy Standards. Each unit includes ready-to-use source material, worksheets, educator lesson plans and assessment tools and activities. You, the educator, are encouraged to explore the unit, and use materials as you see fit for your students. You are welcome to alter lesson plans, worksheets and assessments to best align with their curriculum.

Please check out the Primary Source Sets toolkit to learn more about using primary sources in the classroom.

What’s Included

Educator Materials

Sources are accompanied by an educator lesson plan. This plan includes: the unit compelling question, unit supporting question, objectives, background information, vocabulary lists or cards, a materials list, instructions and Goldie’s History Kit Connections (see below). There also is a “formative assessment” to wrap up each part of the unit and to check for comprehension. You are welcome to use the activities that are suggested or create your own.

Goldie’s History Kit Connection: A Kit Connection is designated with the Goldie icon, as seen on the left. This signals there is an opportunity in the Read Iowa History lesson plan to integrate another element of the kit. This could include a Think Like... card, a storybook or a History Mystery object.

Student Materials

Many of the unit instructions are accompanied by a worksheet that can be copied and distributed to students as they analyze the primary source(s) to assist in their application and comprehension. These worksheets are optional but may provide a structure for students to think critically about the primary sources they are analyzing. These student worksheets are available on the USB flash drive and in the Google Drive folder for easiest reproduction.

Formative Assessments, Lesson Summative Assessment and Scoring Options

The formative assessments, lesson summative assessment and possible scoring options allow you to evaluate how students comprehend and apply the knowledge they learned from the individual primary source activities. Assessment instructions, example worksheet(s) and possible scoring options are located at the end of this Read Iowa History section. Reproduceable assessment worksheets also are available on the USB flash drive and Google Drive folder.

Compelling and Supporting Questions

5th Grade

How to Apply Read Iowa History Lessons to Other Primary Sources

The origin of Read Iowa History lessons stem from the Primary Source Sets, which are a collection of primary sources that focus on a topic and are structured under a compelling question and multiple supporting questions (typically three). Five or six primary sources are used to address and help students answer a single supporting question. Read Iowa History takes one supporting question, the primary sources addressing that question and instructions (divided into parts) to integrate these primary sources in the classroom through different activities.

These lessons, instructions, worksheets, tools and assessment suggestions can be applied to all of the K-5 Primary Source Sets.

Unit Compelling Question

The compelling question drives students to discuss, inquire and investigate the topic of a unit of understanding.

Why aren't all rules good rules?

Unit Supporting Questions

Supporting questions scaffold instruction to help students answer the compelling question. Their aim is to stimulate thought, to provoke inquiry and spark more questions. The supporting question that is highlighted above is the question that was used in this Read Iowa History. The bolded question below is the supporting question for this Read Iowa History unit.

1) What key documents establish the foundation of America's participatory democracy?
2) How are laws created?
3) How can laws be changed to guarantee human rights?

This Read Iowa History lesson addresses “Why aren't all rules good rules?” and “What key documents establish the foundation of America's participatory democracy?” and includes lesson plans, worksheets, suggested assessments and other tools.

The essay is also referenced in parts of this Read Iowa History to assist students in their interpretation and analysis of primary sources.

From its creation, the United States was different from its European predecessors. Its people were not united by a common heritage, ethnicity or even language. It was then, as it is now, a diverse nation of immigrants. What united it was a radical belief of the time, that “all men are created equal,” and that a free people could govern themselves and not descend into anarchy and chaos. For centuries, European nations had monarchs and aristocracies to maintain order and stability from generation to generation. The United States declared that its people would be governed only by their elected representatives. This belief in democracy, as one British commentator observed, created in the United States “a nation with the soul of a church,” united by a common belief.

Framework of U.S. Democracy
Three documents have been central to the essence of this perception. The Declaration of Independence was drafted by the Second Continental Congress in 1776 in Philadelphia to explain and justify why the colonies were separating themselves from the domination of Great Britain. Delegates from 13 colonies along the Atlantic Coast sent delegates to the convention in Philadelphia. They approved a resolution to separate themselves from Great Britain and appointed a committee of five men to draft an explanation to the world why the colonies were taking this step.

The committee chose Thomas Jefferson of Virginia to write the original draft. He began with an explanation of why governments are established and then moved on to the injustices the colonies had endured by Parliament and the king. The document ends with the declaration that the colonies were from now on free from British rule. It was approved by the Continental Congress on July 4, America’s Independence Day. It declares that “all men are created equal and endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights.” The nation has never fully lived up to that bold statement in practice, but it is the measure against which perceived injustices are measured.

The former colonies that defeated the British Empire needed to establish some legal framework that would bind them together for certain purposes but not become as oppressive as the monarch they had just defeated. At first, the Articles of Confederation provided a weak central government but pressure for a stronger authority developed quickly. In 1787, delegates to a Constitutional Convention began meeting to strike a balance between responsibilities left to the states and those delegated to the federal government.

Like the Declaration of Independence, the U.S. Constitution begins with a preamble that sets forth its purpose — “to form a more perfect union.” Federal authority is divided into three branches: the legislative branch that makes the laws; the executive that administers the laws; and the judicial that interprets the laws in cases of conflict. Central to the U.S. Constitution is the concept of checks and balances. Each branch has some authority to curb undue power exercised by the other two branches. Some duties were specifically delegated to the federal government and some specifically reserved to the states. The Convention specified that the plan would go into effect when nine states approved it. New Hampshire was the ninth in 1788, and Rhode Island was the last in 1790. George Washington was elected as the first president in 1788.

Ever concerned that the federal government could abuse the rights of the people as the colonists felt Great Britain had done, Congress proposed a series of amendments to the U.S. Constitution that specifically spelled out restrictions on the federal government. The first 10 amendments to the U.S. Constitution are called the Bill of Rights, including the First Amendment, which states that individuals shall have the right to freedom of speech, religion, the press and assembly and the right to petition the government.

These three documents are central to how the United States presents itself to its own people and to the world. They have been copied by many emerging democracies around the world and show remarkable resilience over the 250 years since their adoption.

Introducing Founding Documents

Unit Compelling Question
Why aren't all rules good rules?

Unit Supporting Question
What key documents establish the foundation of America's participatory democracy?

Overview
This pre-lesson activity will provide an opportunity for students to use the close reading strategy while focusing on literacy standards of main idea, details and summarizing, as well as understanding context of the time period. This reading passage will be a reference throughout the lesson.

Instructions
1. Distribute copies of the Founding Documents reading passage to students.
2. Use the close reading strategy with students to analyze the passage. You can do this as a group or students can work independently as a formative assessment.
   - First reading: Read the passage carefully to gain basic understanding. What is the text mainly about? What is the main idea? Write the main idea in the top margin of the “Take Notes” worksheet. Students will highlight evidence on the passage in green.
   - Second reading: Read again and dig deeper. What are the big ideas that connect to the main idea? Students will highlight evidence on the passage in yellow and write them on the worksheet.
   - Third Reading: Read again and dig for details. What are the details for your big ideas? Students will highlight evidence on the passage in red and write them on the worksheet.
   - Fourth Reading: Students will read the passage one more time to summarize their thinking. They will then summarize the passage in five to seven sentences using their main idea and details they collected on the worksheet to determine key concepts and ideas. Students will write the summary on the Summary of Passage worksheet.

3. Students will refer back to this reading passage throughout the Read Iowa History to focus on different aspects.

Goldie’s History Kit Connection: To continue the introduction to the founding documents, refer to either The Constitution Decoded: A Guide to the Document that Shapes Our Nation or The U.S. Constitution: Why It Matters to You. Read either book and discuss the questions.

Formative Assessment: Use this activity as a formative assessment if you decide to have students complete this on their own. If students have not used this strategy or procedure before, you can use the worksheets as a modeling experience to teach the close reading strategy.
Founding Documents

The founding documents of the United States of America are: the U.S. Constitution, the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights.

The Declaration of Independence
The Declaration of Independence is one of the most important documents in the history of the United States. It was an official act taken by all 13 American colonies in declaring independence from Great Britain. People in the colonies were unhappy that they did not have a say in their government and still had to pay taxes. The Stamp Act of 1765 collected taxes on paper goods like legal documents, newspapers, and playing cards. In one act of protest, men dumped the cargo of a ship full of British tea into Boston Harbor in 1773; this is now called the Boston Tea Party. In 1775, the colonists went to war with Great Britain. The war between the colonies and Great Britain was called the American Revolutionary War from 1775-1783.

The Constitution
The Constitution of the United States is the foundation of the United States Government. It explains the system of Government and the rights of the American people. With three parts: The preamble tells the purpose of the document and Government, the Articles set up how the Government is organized and how the Constitution can be changed, and the Amendments are changes to the Constitution. The first ten Amendments are called the Bill of Rights. The Constitution also created an executive branch and a judicial branch to set up a system of checks and balances. All three branches would have power, so no one branch could become more powerful than another. The Constitution was presented to the American public on September 17, 1787. The Constitution is known as a living document because it can be changed, or amended. Since its ratification, or formal approval, it has only been changed 27 times. Although it has been amended over the years, the Constitution’s basic form still exists today.

The Bill of Rights
When the United States Constitution was approved in 1789, some people felt that it did not protect some basic rights and that the Constitution should be changed to protect those rights. On December 15, 1791, changes were made to the Constitution. These first 10 changes, or amendments, guaranteeing specific freedoms and rights; together they are called the Bill of Rights.

The Bill of Rights includes some of the most basic freedoms and rights that we think of today in the United States. These are a few of the key ideas in each amendment:

- First Amendment: freedom of religion, speech, the press, and assembly
- Second Amendment: the right of the people to keep and bear arms
- Third Amendment: restricts housing soldiers in private homes
- Fourth Amendment: protects against unreasonable search and seizure
- Fifth Amendment: protects against self-testimony, being tried twice for the same crime, and the seizure of property under eminent domain
- Sixth Amendment: the rights to a speedy trial, trial by jury, and services of a lawyer
- Seventh Amendment: guarantees trial by jury in cases involving a certain dollar amount
- Eighth Amendment: prohibits excessive bail or fines and cruel and unusual punishment for crimes
- Ninth Amendment: listing of rights in Bill of Rights does not mean that other rights are not in effect
- Tenth Amendment: power not granted to the Federal Government is reserved for states or individual people

These three documents have secured the rights of the American people for more than two and a quarter centuries and are considered instrumental to the founding of the United States.

Pre-Lesson Activity 2

Instructions

Introduce the compelling question: Why aren’t all rules good rules?

Question Formulation Technique (QFT): This pre-lesson activity is meant to encourage students to ask questions, which is an important step in them taking ownership of their learning. Prior to class, it is recommended you watch the 12-minute QFT instruction video. In the video, a fourth-grade teacher uses QFT to learn more about what her students know or do not know about fractions.

Use the QFT for students to ask questions about the George Mason quote, “That all power is vested in, and consequently derived from, the people; that magistrates are their trustees and servants, and at all times amendable to them.” Ask them to also consider the compelling question, and to use the worksheet.

Materials

• Think Like... cards
• George Mason worksheet
• QFT instruction video

Overview

This pre-lesson activity will illustrate tools students can use to help them analyze primary sources in later parts of Read Iowa History. One tool is the Think Like... cards, which students use to identify disciplinary literacy perspectives, key vocabulary and questions asked by a historian, geographer, economist and political scientist. To prepare students to analyze images and documents, this activity is aimed to remind them that the impact of one’s experience shapes their perspective on topics.

The other tool is the Question Formulation Technique (QFT), which was created by the Right Question Institute. The steps of the QFT are designed to stimulate three types of thinking: divergent thinking, convergent thinking and metacognitive thinking.

Source Background

George Mason led Virginia patriots during the American Revolution, and his concept of inalienable rights influenced Thomas Jefferson’s Declaration of Independence. As a member of the Constitutional Convention, Mason advocated strong local government and a weak central government. This led to the adoption of the Bill of Rights. When the American Revolution got under way, Mason was a leader of Virginia patriots and later drafted the state’s constitution. This document would hold the nuggets of later problems he had with the U.S. Constitution, in that the first rights granted in the Virginia constitution would be on behalf of the individual, which Mason would later see as lacking in the U.S. Constitution. During this time (1787), Mason was also a Virginia delegate (George Washington and James Madison were others) to the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia, where, despite his ongoing poor health, he proved to be vastly influential in the composition of the Constitution.

4 Follow the steps below to assist students in their analysis.
   - Write as many student questions as you can on the board or on chart paper.
   - Do not stop to discuss, judge or answer any questions.
   - Write down every question exactly as stated, change any statements to questions.
   - Sort and prioritize questions.

Goldie’s History Kit Connection: To continue the introduction to early American history and its impact on the founding documents, refer to Rescuing the Declaration of Independence: How we Almost Lost the Words that Built America and discuss the questions.

5 After sharing the prioritized questions, discuss with students what social studies discipline (use disciplines from the Think Like... Cards) that the question falls under. Use the Think Like... cards to assist with the inquiry. Post questions on chart paper or social studies notebook for students to answer as they learn more.

Goldie’s History Kit Connection: There are two other Think Like... cards included - Alexander Clark and Sue M. Wilson Brown. These cards connect directly to the theme of the kit. Feel free to include them in this exercise or use them with the Kit Connections.

6 Discuss how this quote connects to the Founding Documents reading passage.

The Great Law of Peace and the Iroquois Confederacy

Unit Compelling Question
Why aren't all rules good rules?

Unit Supporting Question
What key documents establish the foundation of America's participatory democracy?

Overview
Students will analyze a video about the Iroquois “Great League of Peace” and its impact on the formation of the United States and its representative democracy.

Source Background
Much has been said about the inspiration of the ancient Iroquois “Great League of Peace” in planting the seeds that led to the formation of the United States and its representative democracy. The Iroquois Confederacy, founded by the Great Peacemaker in 1142, is the oldest living participatory democracy on Earth. In 1988, the U.S. Senate paid tribute with a resolution that said, “The confederation of the original 13 colonies into one republic was influenced by the political system developed by the Iroquois Confederacy, as were many of the democratic principles which were incorporated into the constitution itself.”

The people of the Iroquois Confederacy, also known as the Six Nations, refer to themselves as the Haudenosaunee (pronounced “hoo-dee-noh-SHAW-nee”). It means “peoples of the longhouse,” and refers to their lengthy bark-covered longhouses that housed many families. Theirs was a sophisticated and thriving society of well over 5,000 people when the first European explorers encountered them in the early 17th century.

Instructions
1. Introduce the supporting question: What key documents establish the foundation of America's participatory democracy?

2. Use the vocabulary list to introduce the words participatory democracy and democracy.

4. Discuss: How did the Iroquois “Great League of Peace” influence the formation of the United States and its representative democracy? Who were the people of the Iroquois Confederacy?

5. Students record “evidence” on the worksheet from the video source to help answer the supporting question: What key documents establish the foundation of America's participatory democracy?

Investigate and Research Founding Documents

Unit Compelling Question
Why aren't all rules good rules?

Unit Supporting Question
What key documents establish the foundation of America’s participatory democracy?

Overview
This part allows students to view, investigate, discuss and research the founding documents.

Source Background
Independence Hall is a historic building in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. It is called Independence Hall because the Declaration of Independence was passed there. The United States Constitution was also written there. It served as the capital of the United States several times, mostly during the Revolutionary War. It was also the meeting place of the state legislature of Pennsylvania.

Instructions

1. Distribute an “Be an Image Detective” worksheet to students to complete. First, students will analyze a primary source together. Display the Independence Hall in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania image. Read the source and description.

2. Discuss the information. Have students answer these source-dependent questions.
   - Look closely at the photo. What do you notice about the Independence Hall, as well as the surrounding buildings and area?
   - Independence Hall can be considered as one of the birthplaces of the United States. In this building, the Declaration of Independence and U.S. Constitution were both debated and signed. Who would be influenced by the history that took place in the building? Explain your answers.
   - What is the significance of Independence Hall? What is the legacy of the founding documents?

Goldie’s History Kit Connection: To learn more about the founding documents, refer to Rescuing the Declaration of Independence: How we Almost Lost the Words that Built America and discuss the questions. Refer to The Constitution Decoded: A Guide to the Document thatShapes Our Nation or The U.S. Constitution: Why It Matters to You. Read either book and discuss.

3. View and discuss the Declaration of Independence (transcription available), U.S. Constitution (transcription available), Preamble to the U.S. Constitution (transcription available) and Bill of Rights in the U.S. Constitution (transcription available) while re-reading the Founding Documents reading passage.

4. Discuss as a class the importance of the documents as “founding documents” for the United States. The close reading passage has minimal information. Students will be adding details to their Check for Understanding worksheet to write an improved essay answering: What key documents establish the foundation of America’s participatory democracy? Below are some possible research websites:

   - Khan Academy: Democratic Ideals in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution
   - National Constitution Center: Educational Videos
   - Britannica for Kids: Declaration of Independence
   - Duckster: American Revolution - The Declaration of Independence
   - Prequel to Independence
   - The Mini Page: Bill of Rights
   - The Mini Page: Amendments 11-26

5. Students will share key details of their research and defend why they feel their content is the most important evidence for their final essay.

   Goldie’s History Kit Connection: To connect the founding documents to the ability for citizens to vote and the voting process, refer to the Election Returns Dance Poster, Candidate Business Card, Caucus Ballot Container and Iowa Caucus Information Folder. Discuss the object and questions.

6. Formative Assessment: You, the educator, will observe the discussion and/or evidence being record in the Check for Understanding worksheet.

The Unanimous Declaration of the Thirteen United States of America.

State of Iowa’s Constitution

Unit Compelling Question
Why aren’t all rules good rules?

Unit Supporting Question
What key documents establish the foundation of America’s participatory democracy?

Overview
Students will consider the question: Why did states create their own constitutions? They will also be using the close reading strategy.

Source Background
In the early stages of the U.S. government, each state was required to write up their own constitution and Bill of Rights so that the power was given to the states. The primary functions of local governments are to provide services, such as schools, libraries, police and fire departments, and to make and enforce laws.

Instructions
1 Pose the question: Why did states create their own constitutions?
2 Distribute a copy of “Iowa’s Constitution” worksheet to each student.
3 Do a close reading of the “Iowa’s Constitution” essay from The Goldfinch.
   • First reading: You will read the article aloud to your class.
   • Second reading: Students will read and mark text by underlining vocabulary words, drawing a question mark next to parts that need clarification.
   • Third reading: Students will re-read a third time as needed while answering the questions from the “Iowa’s Constitution” worksheet. If there is time, students can use this suggested document and website to answer their own questions:
     - Full Transcript of the Iowa Constitution
     - Iowa Pathways: The Iowa Constitution
4 Students will record evidence on the Check for Understanding worksheet to help answer the supporting question, “What key documents establish the foundation of America’s participatory democracy?”

Materials
• “Iowa’s Constitution” essay in The Goldfinch
• “Iowa’s Constitution” worksheet

Goldie’s History Kit Connection: To make a deeper Iowa connection, refer to the Think Like… Alexander Clark card. Read the biography and discuss the questions. Refer to Iowa Supreme Court Judicial Robe and Iowa Legislative Gavels. Discuss the objects and questions.

Formative Assessment: As students generate questions, listen for the misconceptions that often emerge. Offer information to correct misconceptions that will not be addressed in the remainder of the lesson.
Iowa’s Constitution

When the U.S. Constitution was ratified by the 13 original states, Iowa was not a state. It became a part of the United States through the Louisiana Purchase in the early nineteenth century. The Territory of Iowa was created in 1838. People who lived in the area voted down the proposition to become a state in 1840 and in 1842. They eagerly sought statehood, but opposed boundaries fixed by the U.S. Congress.

After people approved new boundaries, the first Iowa Constitution (the Constitution of 1846) was written so that Iowa could become a state. On December 3, 1846, in the Stone Capitol at Iowa City, Ansel Briggs was inaugurated as first Governor of the State of Iowa. A copy of the Constitution of Iowa was sent to Washington, D.C. It was approved by Congress, and President James Polk gave his approval on December 28, 1846.

As the new state grew, the needs of its people changed. These new needs could not be met by the first constitution so a constitutional convention was called to write a new one.

No Money in Iowa
The main drawback of the first Iowa constitution was that it did not allow banks that could print and issue money (these were called “banks of issue”). Money in the 1840s was not like the money we use today. The United States government did not print paper money at all. Instead, it made gold and silver coins. Banks and businesses avoided this problem by printing notes (a kind of paper money) to use in place of gold or silver. In the 1840s and ’50s, there were over 700 banks in the U. S. Many of these printed their own notes. The value of the notes varied from bank to bank. It was impossible to know the current value of the notes of all banks. In Iowa, the Constitution of 1846 prohibited banks of issue. They had no official currency. At one time, over 300 kinds of money circulated in Iowa.

When the new Constitution of 1857 was adopted, a new bank with many branches was begun. This was called the State Bank because the state made the rules. The State Bank gave Iowans money they could trust.

Comparing Preambles of Iowa and U.S. Constitutions

Unit Compelling Question
Why aren't all rules good rules?

Unit Supporting Question
What key documents establish the foundation of America's participatory democracy?

Overview
Students will compare and contrast the Iowa and U.S. preambles to each constitution.

Source Background
The preamble to the U.S. Constitution, beginning with the words “We the People,” is a brief introductory statement of the Constitution's fundamental purposes and guiding principles. Courts have referred to it as reliable evidence of the founders' intentions regarding the Constitution's meaning and what they hoped the Constitution would achieve.

Instructions

1. Have students read, compare and contrast the U.S. and Iowa preambles. Investigate these questions:
   - What is the purpose(s) of the preamble?
   - How does the preamble to the U.S. Constitution help explain why the founders thought Americans needed one?
   - What are the key words in the preamble that embody the country's ideas and Iowa's ideas?
   - Discuss how the preambles are similar or different.

2. Students record evidence in the Check for Understanding worksheet from the sources to help answer the supporting question: What key documents establish the foundation of America's participatory democracy?

   Goldie's History Kit Connection: To learn about people who had to fight for the right to vote, refer to Equality's Call: The Story of Voting Rights in America and discuss the questions. Refer to the Think Like... Sue M. Wilson Brown card; read the biography and discuss the questions. Refer to the Women's Suffrage Sash. Discuss the object and questions.

3. Formative Assessment: You, the educator, will observe the discussion and Venn diagram creation.

Government, Democracy and Laws

Introduction

A “read aloud” is an effective way to promote language and literacy skills and help encourage a lifelong love of reading and learning. This Goldie's History Kit provides four books related to government, democracy and laws. This read aloud activity directly combines literacy and Iowa history in an easily reproduceable format.

What’s Included

Each Read Aloud Activity Features

• Hard copy of the book (if available, digital recording included)
• Description of the book
• Reasoning for its inclusion in the kit and connection to Iowa history
• Text-dependent questions

Books

This kit contains the four storybooks listed below. Each book has an activity instruction sheet that provides: a book description, a comprehensive explanation of how this book relates to the theme, why it was selected and how it aligns with the Iowa Core Literacy and Social Studies Standards.

• The Constitution Decoded: A Guide to the Document that Shapes Our Nation by Katie Kennedy
• The U.S. Constitution: Why It Matters to You by Moira Rose Donohue
• Equality’s Call: The Story of Voting Rights in America by Deborah Diesen
• Rescuing the Declaration of Independence: How we Almost Lost the Words that Built America by Anna Crowley Redding
• Unite or Die: How Thirteen States Became a Nation by Jacqueline Jules

Text-Dependent Questions

Each book activity instruction sheet also includes three to five text-dependent questions that align with the Iowa Core Literacy and Social Studies Standards. These questions can be integrated throughout the read aloud activity or after the book is completed to offer a point of reflection for students. Some of the questions are more oriented to facilitate a connection between the Goldie's History Kit theme, Iowa history and/or U.S. history.

Suggested Read Aloud Tips

Below are listed suggestions of how to prepare for a read aloud activity with the additional historical resources available in this Goldie’s History Kit. Educators are welcome to adjust the format to best fit their classroom needs.

Before Read Aloud

• Start by choosing one of the suggested storybooks to read aloud. To assist in your selection, each book is accompanied with a description, reasons for its selection with historical context and relationship to the topic and selected state standards.

• It is recommended that you read the books ahead of time. This allows you to get familiar with the book’s content and difficult pronunciations and helps provide context for possible background information to prep students before you begin.

• Read and/or print off text-dependent questions prior to beginning the read aloud. It is up to the educator on whether to use the questions during read aloud or after, but this step allows you to become familiar with the questions and to denote pages within the storybook to use for a particular text-dependent question.

• It is encouraged to introduce the overall topic with a brief explanation. You can use the background essay and the individual book description to assist in prefacing the book.

• Expressive reading can be effective in keeping students’ attention and emphasizing points of the book for retention. Consider using an expressive voice by changing the volume and tone of your reading to reflect different characters or significant events.

During Read Aloud

• Draw attention by pointing to characters or objects in the pictures as you read. It is important to bring attention to topics, events and specific characters you want to connect to the Read Iowa History lesson plan and the topic.

• Creating a dialogue with students during read aloud enhances engagement. Text-dependent questions are provided for each book, but educators are encouraged to include their own. Common questions asked to facilitate engagement during read aloud are: “What do you think will happen next?” or “Why would (X) do this? What would you have done if you were (X)?”

• Don’t be afraid to follow participants’ lead. If students have questions or want to go back, if time allows, try to be receptive to their observations. It may lead to important exchanges about the story that may not be discussed in follow-up questions.

After Read Aloud

- After you have finished reading the book aloud to the class, additional text-dependent questions are an effective way to gauge how much students remember from the book and if they can demonstrate an understanding of the text. Text-dependent questions were designed to reflect the Iowa Core Literacy and Social Studies Standards.

- If students are struggling to answer the text-dependent questions, feel free to go back to the book and re-read passages that could assist in their recollection and application.

- It is critically important that students are able to make connections between the story they heard and how it relates to history in Iowa and around the country.

  - Example: As students explore documents such as the Declaration of Independence and the U.S. Constitution in part 2 of the Read Iowa History, connect a book from the read aloud, such as The Constitution Decoded: A Guide to the Document that Shapes Our Nation. This book is a great resource for exploring the Constitution in greater detail. It contains individual chapters covering each of the seven articles, a section on the amendments, the Declaration of Independence and the Articles of Confederation. The text contains footnotes that explain what the documents mean.

- Educators are welcome and encouraged to use the primary sources (such as the ones found in the Read Iowa History section or online within the Primary Source Sets) or find their own to present to the class. Pass around, hold up or project the images for students to view.

- Ultimately, the purpose of the read aloud wrap-up is to facilitate and evaluate students’ comprehension of the subject matter and provide a direct link to history and literacy.
Below are the Iowa Core Literacy and Social Studies Standards that specifically align with the read-aloud activities in the Goldie's History Kit about government, democracy and laws. If a book title is listed after the description, this signifies that this standard only applies to this book.

Equality’s Call: The Story of Voting Rights in America

Deborah Diesen 2020 Nonfiction (Storybook)

Book Description
This lyrical story begins in a classroom with a teacher introducing her students to the subject of voting rights. Throughout the lesson, the children explore the drafting of the Constitution, the abolition of slavery, women’s suffrage and the Voting Rights Act. The book is written as a poem and the refrain “a right isn’t right till it’s granted to all” reverberates throughout the narrative. The book moves beyond the history of voting in America and concludes with a call to continue to promote the dream of democracy. The end of the book contains a section that provides an overview of voting-related amendments and legislation, as well as, a list of voting rights activists depicted in the book. (48 pages)

Listen to the digital recording of the book (read by author)

Why This Book
The book begins by addressing the role of the founders in establishing the Constitution. The text moves on to address the role of voting, elections and representation; however, many people groups were excluded from this right. The various amendments and laws that have influenced voting in America are discussed. Finally, the value of learning from the past in order to improve the present is stressed.

Text-Dependent Questions

1. When establishing the United States, what did the founders mean by “consent of the governed?”

2. Originally, what people groups were not allowed to vote?

3. If the purpose of voting is to make the peoples’ voices heard and elect people to office who represent the people, what happens when only a specific group of the population is allowed to vote?

4. How did amendments to the Constitution alter voting rights?

Book Description
In 1814, the British invaded Washington, D.C., the young capital of the United States. Then Secretary of State James Monroe discovered the invasion and gave direct orders to his office clerk, Stephen Pleasonton, to move the documents. Within hours, the founding documents of the nation were whisked away by faithful citizens to a safe location. Due to this quick response, the Charters of Freedom were preserved while the rest of Washington burned to the ground. The book concludes with an author’s note that expands upon the history and significance of the Declaration of Independence, the U.S. Constitution and the Articles of Confederation. (40 pages)

Listen to the digital recording of the book

Why This Book
This little known story of how Stephen Pleasonton and a number of faithful citizens preserved the founding documents of the United States presents readers with a new perspective on the significance of such documents. This book demonstrates that without such documents the language used to establish the independence and freedoms of the United States government would be lost. These documents are not merely words on a page, but symbols of unity and shared principles.

Text-Dependent Questions

1. As the office clerk, how did Stephen Pleasonton play a role in preserving the founding documents of the United States?

2. Today, paper is a common object. Why was it so important for Pleasonton to preserve the Declaration of Independence?

3. How did other concerned citizens help Pleasonton protect the documents?

4. Where is the original Declaration of Independence today?

Introduction

The History Mystery activity utilizes historic objects from the State Historical Museum of Iowa’s collection to provide students with a unique opportunity to investigate photos of museum artifacts in their own classrooms. Students will work as “history detectives” to figure out the nature of the object, its use and its relationship to the kit theme. This activity is designed to challenge students to use their skills of deduction, critical thinking and visual literacy to identify the multiple artifacts and understand their connections to Iowa History and the theme of the kit. History Mystery can be used as an independent student activity or in conjunction with the Read Iowa History lesson plan. Educators should explain to students that the goal of the activity is to solve the mystery by searching photos (and possibly videos) for visual clues.

By participating in History Mystery, students will:

• Use problem-solving and critical thinking skills
• Analyze clues to deduce the name and use of objects
• Explore and use background information provided for each object to determine historical significance
• Make real-world connections between the use of the objects and the kit theme

What’s Included

This History Mystery Activity Features

• Photographs of objects
• Background information for each object
• Suggested questions to facilitate students for each object
• History Mystery worksheet

Objects

Each object has photos specifically taken for students to analyze. The photos are printed, laminated and included in the kit. Most objects include multiple photos at different angles, close-ups, etc. to provide different perspectives to help in their detective work. All images for this History Mystery are available on the USB flash drive included in this kit and also in the Google Drive folder.

Questions

Each individual object page in the educator materials packet includes questions to help educators encourage, assist and further engage students as they attempt this activity. Questions are meant to provoke conversation about the object, its relation to the theme of the kit and its connection to Iowa history.

History Mystery Worksheet with Artifact Interpretation Instructions

The History Mystery worksheet includes artifact interpretation questions to assist students in analyzing the objects. The worksheet is easily reproducible and meant to be distributed to students. It can also be applied to any activity similar to History Mystery, such as having students bring in their own family artifacts.

Below are suggestions of how to prepare for and run a History Mystery activity. The first format shows how to integrate the activity with the Read Iowa History lesson plan (refer to Kit Connections). The second suggested format is using History Mystery as a standalone, group activity. Educators are welcome to adjust the format to best fit their classroom needs.

Type of Activity

Kit Connections

- Using the objects identified with Kit Connections

Before Activity

- Choose which Kit Connection with a History Mystery object you would like to use. Kit Connections are identifiable by the yellow box and Goldie’s icon within the Read Iowa History lesson plan.
- Have the object pages from this manual available to you with the object descriptions, historical significance and additional questions.
- Choose the most effective, convenient way to display the object photos (and possibly videos) to the class.
- If they have not already read it or had it read to them, please read aloud the background essay.

During Activity

- After displaying the photos or video of the object, it is recommended that students receive one to two minutes to silently analyze the object.
- After the initial analysis, start a discussion with the students (one to three minutes) to reveal their initial thoughts and analysis of the object.
- Following this time, pose the questions connected to the object to your students.
- Remember to connect the objects to the kit topic and the lesson currently in progress.

Caucus Ballot Container

Description
This object is a coffee can that was used as a ballot container for the 2012 caucus for Allen I Township in Warren County, Iowa. The 34.5 ounce container is Hy-Vee brand with brown labeling over the container’s metal. The container is sitting on its plastic lid. Stuck onto the label is a nametag with “Allen I” written on it. Local residents used this container at the Central High School auditorium to cast ballots for a candidate running for president.

Object Significance
This container helps Americans participate in a presidential caucus. Unlike a primary (or general election), a caucus is an informal, public event that is privately run. While sometimes done by people just gathering in different groups and doing a head count on who they’re voting for, a container such as this can just as easily be used to hold ballots, such as pieces of paper. Although not its intended use, this coffee container shows how an object can be transformed into an important object to ensure local Iowans’ participation was counted in the Iowa caucuses.

Questions about History Mystery Object
1. What do you see when you look at this object? What else do you notice?
2. The coffee container was used to count votes back in 2012. How might votes possibly have been counted in the country’s earlier years? Do you think much has changed in counting votes between those early years and today?
3. Township is a level of government between county and town/city levels. Why might the Allen I Township choose to caucus with their smaller community rather than join a larger group?
Iowa Caucus Information Folder

Description (Object Transcript Here)
This object is a folder and its content was used in Iowa’s 2012 caucus for presidential candidates. The Iowa Democratic Party prepared this folder for those working that year’s election event. On the front of the folder is a sticker detailing voting precinct information. The sticker states that this folder is for a worker at the 64th precinct for Des Moines, Iowa, and includes the election’s address site and name and phone number for the site leader. Another sticker is placed at the top of the folder’s front as well with information of the county name, precinct, number of delegates and precinct code.

Object Significance
This folder is essential in working to ensure American democratic elections take place. The folder contains 23 items including guides and tools for conducting the caucus process, a letter from then-Senator Tom Harkin and information regarding future political activities. With all of the folder’s items, one can see a glimpse of the work that goes into running a caucus site.

Questions about History Mystery Object
1. What do you see when you look at this object? What else do you notice?
2. Why do you think the folder contains so many items? How do you think the caucus would have gone without many of its items?
3. Looking at the precinct address one can see the vote is happening at a school. Why do you think a school was chosen as the site to hold a caucus? Do you think the location can affect how people participate in caucuses? If so, how?
4. After looking at this object, refer back to the caucus ballot container. How might both of these objects be used in a caucus?
Iowa Supreme Court Judicial Robe

Description
This object is a black robe with bell sleeves, a zipper closure on the front and a name label on the interior. Linda K. Neuman wore this robe while serving as a judge on the Iowa Supreme Court from August 4, 1986, to July 11, 2003. The robe is 44.25 inches by 27.5 inches.

Object Significance
Neuman served in Iowa’s judicial system on both sides of cases from 1973 to 2003. At first, Neuman worked for a private law firm. In 1977, she became the first woman accepted as a partner at the law firm, a firm open since 1906. Three years later, she left her position and became the first woman appointed as a circuit judge to serve the public in Scott County, Iowa. By 1982, she became the second woman ever appointed to district judge in Iowa. Neuman’s journey didn’t stop there, though, as she went on to become the first woman to serve on the Iowa Supreme Court in 1986. Wearing this robe, Neuman served the people of Iowa in interpreting legal conflicts as they arose until her retirement in 2003.

Questions about History Mystery Object
1. What do you see when you look at this object?
2. Since Iowa’s statehood in 1846, why do you think it took 140 years before a woman was appointed as a judge on the Iowa Supreme Court?
3. Why is the Supreme Court (state or federal) important in American democracy? Discuss how Iowa’s, and at large America’s, democracy might have been affected from not having a woman on the court?
Iowa State Senate and House of Representatives Gavels

Description
These objects are two gavels, each used by a leader of one of Iowa’s legislative bodies. The first gavel is made from wood with five pieces of laminated together for its cylindrical head and then more for its handle. The gavel is 15 inches by 15 inches by 2.875 inches. Iowa Prison Industries created the gavel for use by Democrat Jo Ann Zimmerman in the Iowa House of Representatives.

The second gavel is also made from walnut wood, and consists of a cylindrical head and handle. The gavel is 9 inches by 2.5 inches and was created in 1888 for use by Republican William Redman in the Iowa Senate.

Object Significance
These gavels were used in the proceedings of both the Iowa House of Representatives and Senate to enact what became law in Iowa during their use. Zimmerman was elected as leader of the Senate and served as such from 1987 until 1991. During her time, Zimmerman advocated for the passing of laws aimed at assisting the elderly, healthcare reform and advocating for women’s rights. Around 100 years prior, Redman led the Iowa House of Representatives from 1888 until 1890. No matter the time, gavels such as these are symbols of authority given to officials people have chosen to elect and work toward passing laws.

Questions about History Mystery Object
1. What do you see when you look at this object? What else do you notice?
2. A gavel is used to call a session of legislation into order or close it as well as reprimand members who are out of line. Why do you think this small, wooden hammer is important in ensuring America’s participatory democracy functions?
3. A convicted prisoner made Zimmerman’s gavel while employed at Iowa Prison Industries. Sometimes inmates cannot vote in elections once they complete their sentences. Discuss the implications of prisoners making gavels that will be used by elected officials that they may or may not be able to vote for.
Women’s Suffrage Sash

Description
This object is a sash that would have been worn during the American women’s suffrage movement. The sash is yellow with “Votes for Women” printed in black letters across it. It is 69.25 inches by 3.5 inches.

Object Significance
This sash is important in the ongoing story of working to allow as many Americans as possible to participate in democracy. Prior to the 19th Amendment, which was ratified in 1920, women (primarily white women) only had the right to vote in a select number of states. That meant that most states did not allow roughly half of their population to participate in democracy. Women from across the United States started to rise up and work together to change the laws at the state and federal level. To show their support, women wore sashes like this.

Questions about History Mystery Object
1. What do you see when you look at this object? What else do you notice?
2. With the exception of New Jersey, where women had the right to vote between 1797 and 1807, many of the first states to adopt women’s suffrage were western states. Discuss why this might have been.
3. Some women’s suffrage groups worked with and supported voting equality for African Americans. Discuss why this might have been. What are the benefits or drawbacks for doing this?
Candidate Business Card

Description
Robert E. Patten of Des Moines, Iowa, printed this card for Republican candidate Corrie Holland for the position of “Precinct Committeewoman of Precinct 52.” The text below that of the position states “Will Appreciate Your Vote, Primary Election June 1, 1942.” The card is 2 by 3.5 inches.

Object Significance
This card demonstrates how candidates have promoted themselves in the past. Holland is running to become the leader of Precinct 52 of Des Moines, Iowa. As committeewoman for Republicans in the small area, Holland would have been a direct link between local voters and the political party at large. The card highlights how important it is for Americans to participate in democracy, like voting, even their local elections.

Robert E. Patten (1883-1968), the man who printed this card, must be mentioned as he was a key African-American figure for decades in Des Moines, Iowa. Clark was part of three generations of an African-American family in Des Moines. Patten opened a print shop in Des Moines’ Center Street neighborhood, where he produced or sold printed orders, such as this card, between 1910 and 1960. Patten was involved in many community organizations, holding multiple roles within the local and statewide African-American community. This card demonstrates how Patten helped to keep voters informed of information regarding elections so as they can know when and where to make their voices heard.

Questions about History Mystery Object
1. What do you see when you look at this object? What else do you notice?
2. In 1942, women in the United States, and Iowa, would have only had the full right to vote for 22 years, let alone hold political positions. Why might candidates like Holland use Patten to print this card?
3. Those running for local elections don't spend as much money on proportions as those running for state and national elections, typically. Discuss the benefits of Holland using cards to promote her candidacy. What are the drawbacks?
Description  (Object Transcript Here)
A poster advertising an event celebrating election results taking place at Blue Circle Hall. The hall can be found at the city’s intersection of 4th and Grand with Ray Dysart’s Xylo Sax Harmony Band providing music. The poster reads of the event taking place on November 7, 1922, with admission only costing 50 cents for the public. The poster is a 15 inch by 10.875 inch piece of paper with black text.

Object Significance
This poster is seen as a public celebration of American democracy. It advertises a dance that was held on the night of an election. At the dance, people gathered together at a time when the results would be announced.

This was produced by Robert Patten of Des Moines, who was a prolific job printer and preserver of African-American history in Iowa, predominantly Polk County. Patten’s home and print shop were located in the Center Street neighborhood at 821 and 823 14th Street. Both were destroyed as part of urban renewal in the 1960s, but his son-in-law, W. Lawrence Oliver, and granddaughter, Barbara Oliver-Hall, arranged for the items in the print shop to be removed and stored. Patten’s son, E. Hobart De Patten, donated the collection in 1995.

Questions about History Mystery Object
1. What do you see when you look at this object? What else do you notice?
2. Although we do not know the sponsor, do you think organizers themselves know the election results? Discuss why or why not.
3. How does this event compare to election celebrations today? What is the same? What is different?

Introduction

The “Think Like...” activity includes a set of cards to encourage students to think about history through multiple perspectives. The cards feature questions students can use to guide their process of understanding about government, democracy and laws from individuals with varying interests and priorities. Every kit includes five universal cards (geographer, economist, journalist, economist and political scientist) and two additional cards that specifically highlight individuals connected to the topic (Alexander Clark, Sue M. Wilson Brown). Each card provides background information about a notable Iowan to provide an Iowa history connection to reference as they work on the questions.

What's Included

Think Like... Cards Feature

• Pack of seven cards
• Each card Includes
  - Definition of card description (ex: the job of a geographer)
  - Questions to guide the connection between the card and the topic
  - Brief biography of a notable Iowan in that profession

Questions

The questions with the five universal cards (in every kit) are broad enough that they can relate to any topic. Some cards are more applicable than others to this topic, but each question is open-ended and can push students to think about a topic from multiple perspectives. For instance, thinking about what key documents establish the foundation of America's participatory democracy may be an easier application than thinking about it from the perspective of a geographer. The Iowan featured on the back of the card is a unique element of these cards that allows students to make local, real-life connections between Iowa history and the kit topic.

Suggested Think Like... Activity Set Up and Implementation
Below are suggestions of how to prepare for and run a Think Like... card activity. The first format shows how to integrate the activity with the Read Iowa History lesson plan (refer to Kit Connections). The second suggested format is using Think Like... cards as a standalone, group activity. Educators are welcome to adjust the format to best fit their classroom needs.

Think Like... Alexander Clark Card

Think Like Alexander Clark

- Do you think Alexander Clark’s involvement in the Civil War encouraged him to become a suffrage advocate for African-American men? How?

- Following the Civil War, African-American men were given the right to vote in Iowa. Why do you think women were not allowed the right to vote at this time?

- Clark is known for his civil rights advocacy in Iowa history. What do you think is his greatest accomplishment? Why?

Alexander Clark (1826-1891)
Born in Pennsylvania in 1826 as the son of a formerly-enslaved person, Clark was encouraged to pursue an education. When he was 16, he moved to Bloomington (now Muscatine) and opened a barber shop. He petitioned to repeal discriminatory laws and organized the first unit of African-American soldiers to fight in the Civil War. In 1867, the Muscatine school board said Clark’s daughter, Susan, could not attend the same public school as white children. Clark sued and in 1868, the Iowa Supreme Court ruled in his favor, stating all children could attend a common school. Clark also was instrumental in having the word “white” struck from the Iowa Constitution so all men could vote. His son became the first African American to graduate from the University of Iowa’s law school, and Clark himself graduated five years later. Clark was appointed U.S. minister to Liberia.
Think Like Sue M. Wilson Brown

- Sue Brown fought tirelessly for the rights of all African Americans, but especially for Black women. Discuss reasons for this focus combined with her fight for women’s suffrage.

- The NAACP pledged “to promote equality of rights and eradicate caste or race prejudice among citizens of the United States ... to increase their opportunities for securing justice in the courts, education for their children, employment according to their ability.” Why do you think Brown and her husband would want to open a chapter in Des Moines?

Sue M. Wilson Brown (1877-1941)
Sue Wilson Brown was born in Virginia, but graduated from Oskaloosa High School, and moved to Des Moines. Brown dedicated her life to improving the status of African Americans on both a state and national level and to women's suffrage. She founded the Des Moines League of Colored Women Voters in 1912 and the Des Moines Mary Church Terrell Club. As president of the Iowa Federation of Colored Women's Clubs from 1915 to 1917, Brown worked with the Polk County Suffrage Association to further the cause. She and her husband established a Des Moines chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) and Brown became the first female president of this chapter in 1925.
Think Like... a Geographer Card

Think Like a Geographer

A person who studies the environment and how it impacts people.

- Describe details about this location. What do you notice that can help figure out where this place is located? What is unique?

- Why would people move to or leave this place?

- How would people travel to this location? How has traveling to this location changed over time?

- Describe details about people who live here and how they impact the location? How does the location impact the people who live there?

Ira Cook (1821-1902)

Much like how a geographer studies the land, a land surveyor is someone who measures land areas in order to determine boundaries for settlers to purchase. Ira Cook was one of many Iowans to receive a contract from the government to be a land surveyor when Iowa territory had to be measured. Cook endured tough conditions, long journeys by foot and wagon and harsh weather from 1849-1853 as he crossed the state measuring the land. He was elected mayor of Des Moines, Iowa, in 1861 and later moved to Washington, D.C., to become Deputy United States Revenue Collector in 1864.
Think Like an Economist

A person who studies the ways people make a living.

- Describe the people in relation to the location. What jobs or occupations do you think people had? Why do you say that? How do you think they met their needs and wants?
- How do decisions made by individuals affect themselves and the economy?
- How do decisions made by businesses affect people?
- How do jobs impact people and the economy? Describe what happens when jobs are lost.

Voltaire Twombly (1842-1918)
Voltaire P. Twombly was elected Treasurer of Iowa in January 1885. The treasurer officially oversees the state’s revenue and finances. He served three terms in the position before stepping down in 1891. Not only was Twombly financially savvy, he also was a war hero. During the Battle of Fort Donelson during the Civil War, he picked up and carried his regiment’s national colors after three other members of his regiment were killed or incapacitated by Confederate fire while attempting to secure the flag. Twombly received a Medal of Honor in 1897 for his heroic deeds during the battle.
Think Like... a Historian Card

Think Like a Historian

A person who explains changes that happened in the past.

- What happened in the past? Why is it important to understand what has happened in the past?
- How did past decisions or actions significantly transform people’s lives?
- What has changed or stayed the same over time? Who benefited from the change? Why? Who did not benefit? Why?
- Who or what made changes happen? Who supported the change? Who didn’t? Why?

Louise Noun (1908-2002)
Louise Frankel Rosenfield Noun spent her life preserving and sharing Iowa history. She was born in Des Moines to Meyer Rosenfield, owner of the Younker’s department store, and Rose Frankel Rosenfield, a suffrage-supporting mother. Noun and Mary Louise Smith, the former chair of the Republican National Committee, worked together to found the Iowa Women’s Archives at the University of Iowa Main Library. The archives include important manuscripts and papers which record women’s history in Iowa. Louise Noun also authored numerous books and papers regarding feminist history in Iowa.

Think Like... a Political Scientist Card

Think Like a Political Scientist

A person who studies governments and how they work.

- What problems might people have faced in this society?
- What rights do people have? What rights are people missing?
- What might lead to people being treated fairly? What might lead to people being treated unfairly?
- What information can be gathered about trends at this location or time period that might change or impact the future?

George Gallup (1901-1984)

A native of Jefferson, Iowa, and graduate of the University of Iowa, George Gallup invented the now famous Gallup Poll. The Gallup Poll is a method of survey sampling (asking different people the same question for their answers) to help figure out public opinion. Polls are important for elections and helpful for political scientists. The first instance of using the Gallup Poll for politics was the 1932 campaign of Gallup’s mother-in-law, Ola Babcock Miller, who successfully ran for Iowa Secretary of State.
Think Like... a Journalist Card

Think Like a Journalist

A person who tells others about the story.

- What are the major headlines of this historical topic?
- What people would you want to interview? What questions would you ask?
- What details are needed to tell this particular story to people not from this area?
- Why is it important to share news about what is happening at this time period or this location?

George Mills (1906-2003)

There was not a story developing within the Iowa Capitol’s hallways or chambers that George Mills did not cover for The Des Moines Register newspaper. Mills covered events and political news at the capitol building from 1943-1971 and later served as a reporter for television station WHO-TV. From 1943 to 1954, Mills was also the Iowa correspondent for Time, Life and Fortune magazines, writing Iowa stories for a national audience.
